HAZING QUESTION UP AGAIN.

CADET PENDLETON, DISMISSED,

HAS APPEALED TO CONGRESS. Says He Didn't Haze Another Cadet, Though He Pleaded Guilty to Doing

So, on the Advice of Counsel, Whom He Didn't Choose-Would Be Reinstated. The general subject of hazing and its punishment at the United States Military Academy at West Point is to be brought Congress early in December, through the efforts of friends of former Cadet Alexander G. Pendleton, Jr., of · Arizona, to secure his reinstatement in the Academy Cadet Pendleton was dismissed on Aug. 1 on the finding of a court martial that he ! was guilty of hazing Cadet Calvert L. Davenport. It now appears that he didn't haze Davenport at all, and that the court found him guilty on no evidence, but on his own plea of guilty, and that he was induced to make this plea by his counsel, whom he had secured by Hobson's choice.

It is said by Pendleton's friends that istead of being dismissed on evidence of hazing he had no fair opportunity of deence. Pendleton himself is so convinced hat the testimony before the court-martial rill show to anybody that there was no evidence of hazing, that he has appended a transcript of the court record to the statement in his own behalf which he has prepared for submission to Congress

Pendleton belonged to the first or highest class at the Academy, and is not yet 20 years old. Early in the evening of July 10 he was detailed by his captain to visit the tents of the new cadets, or fourth class men, to see that they cleaned their guns,

At Davenport's tent Pendleton found Cadet Crafton and sent him back to his own tent to clean his gun. As Crafton went out Davenport said: "So long, Crafton," and at the same time failed to stand at attention as the regulations required in the presence of Pendleton, who was there as an officer.

Aside from his failure to stand at attention, Davenport also broke the rules by addressing Crafton while Pendleton was speaking to Crafton on duty. Pendleton avs in his statement:

says in his statement:

I ordered Cadet Davenport to stand at attention and to draw in his chin; in other words to assume a soldierly position. This was a proper military order and strictly in accordance with the regulations of the Academy. The position which the cadet assumed was not constrained in any other sense than that it was the position of a soldier. His offensive conduct angered me and caused me to use the harsh language toward him as accurately stated in the specifications of General Orders No. 90.

The language set forth in the general

The language set forth in the general orders was: "Draw it (his chin) in further, if you don't I will punch it in," and also: "What do you mean by speaking to another badet when I am speaking to him? You will get your face smashed if you don't look out."

The incident passed without note until a week or so later when a board of offi-oers detailed by Col. Mills as a sort of in-vestigating committee called each new cadet before the board and asked him if he had been hazed in any way. Daven-port told of the Pendleton incident and Pendleton was arrested, and was not allowed to communicate with his friends and was ordered before the court-martial on the charge that he had hazed Davenport.

He was allowed to select one of a certain number of officers o n duty at the Academy for his counsel, and on the advice of his counsel he pleaded guilty "when my conscience and understanding dictated to me that I was not guilty."

His counsel, he ways told him that it

His counsel, he says, told him that it made no difference whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty, as the object of the defence would be to show that there was defence would be to show that there was no intent to haze, the definition of hazing making it not hazing if there was no intent, and that a plea of guilty would aid him in that it would give him the opportunity to make a statement to the court. "In regard to the lamentable error of my counsel," Pendieton says, "in advising me to make what I declare to be an absolutly erroneous plea, I have only to say that I believe it was due entirely to his failure to appreciate the fact that a plea of guilty before a general court-martial obliges the court to find the charge proven by plea." Pendleton's friends assert that he should have had the opportunity between the finding of the court's verdict and its confirmation by the President to make endeavor to secure a modification of the court's sentence. Instead, however, they say that he was kept under arrest and in ignorance of the ourt's finding until the record of the trial had been sent to Washington and approved by President Roosevelt. This approval, they assert to have been purely a formal one, without ex-

Pendleton stood high in his class and his friends will ask Congress for legislation restoring him to the A-ademy. They will ask also, it is understood, for an amend ment of the law so that appeal shall be allowed hereafter in such cases as Pendleton's, where an unusually severe sentence follows such a procedure as that by which he was dismissed from the service of the United States.

MEDICAL MEN AMAZED.

A Negro. Who Dropped Dead, Had Heart and Left Lung Connected by a Growth.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 23.-Medical men of this city are amazed at a most remarkable case that has come to their attention. It is believed to be the only one of the kind recorded. Yesterday a negro of the name of Allen dropped dead at the home of Farmer Halliday. Allen had been driving a kicking horse and when he reached the Halliday house he was excited. Within a few minutes he complained of not feeling well and almost without warning fell over

Coroner Slocum directed an autopsy and when this was performed the doctors found that Allen's heart and left lung were connected by a growth over three inches long. Allen was 60 years old and to all appearances the organs had been in this condition His heart was large and it good condition, but his lungs showed that he was suffering from pneumonia. It is understood that the heart and lung have been preserved and that the case will reated in medical journals, so re markable is it considered

RESIGNATION OF PROF. HYSLOP. Sought Scientific Proof Throug

Spiritism of Life After Death. James Henry Hyslop, of whose resignation as professor of psychology and ethics at olumbia THE SUN told yesterday, retires solely on account of ill health.

Dr. Hyslop became interested in "spiritism" several years ago and confessed his belief that the dead can communicate with the living through a trance medium. He sought scientific proof of it. He had several sittings with Mrs. Leonora E. Piper, the "trance medium" of Arlington, Mass., who two years ago confessed her ignorance of "spiritualism" and said that in her opinion all her feats might be attributed to telepathy or hypnotism.

Prof. Hyslop at the time of Mrs. Piper' statement is said to have asserted that he didn't believe she had made it or if she had that she didn't mean what she said. Prof. Hyslop became secretary of the local section of the American branch of the Society for Psychical Research. He was formerly head of the division of psychology in the school of philosophy at Columbia. While he was away on his sabbatical year last year the new president Nicholas Murray Butler, was installed and soon after that Prof. J. McKean Cattell was put at the head of the psychology division. At the time Prof. Hyslop went on his sabbatical vacation he said he was ill and needed a rest. He spent the year

THE ATLANTIC H GHLANDS FIRE. The Old Tabernacle Destroyed -- Much Talk of Incendiarism.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Nov. 23 .-The old "Tabernacle," in which the Methodists who founded Atlantic Highlands as a campmeeting resort for several years conducted their summer meetings when dampness drove them indoors from their grove auditorium, was entirely consumed by fire this morning about half an hour after midnight. The wooden building was moved to its present site on Bay View avenue a few years ago by the Rev. Dr. E. C. Curtis, then president of the campmeeting association, and it became the property of his son, M. E. Curtis, together with bathing grounds and amusement pavilions near it and adjoining the Bay View avenue railroad station.

Two years ago, after two previous incendiary attempts were frustrated, the bathing and amusement pavilions burned one stormy winter night. The property was well insured and was not rebuilt. The building that burned last night has been unprofitable from a business standpoint. It was a large octagon structure, used in summer as an ice cream saloon and hall for ministrel shows, cakewalks and fairs. It was closed up on Oct. 1 and no one has lived on the property since. There is much talk of incendiarism. The hall it is have a with such rapidity that the building burned with such rapidity that the firemen were astonished. Flames roared up in a mass as high as the Portland Hotel, which is but 200 feet away to the west.

VOTED TO HAVE MUSIC. Large Christian Church in Lexington, Ky., Disrupted-Pastor Leaves.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 23.-By a vote of 361 for and 202 against, the Broadway Christian Church here to-day decided to install instrumental music. The vote not only gives the church instrumental music, but lessens its membership by from 150 to 200 persons and drives away the Rev. Dr. W. J. McGarvey, the church's first pastor, now president of Kentucky University Bible College, and Elder J. W. Zachary, late Prohibition candidate for Congress from this district.

The congregation knew all this when the the congregation knew an this when the vote was cast, for both Dr. McGarvey and Elder Zachary had called for their letters and had declared openly that they would join Chestnut Street Church, which has no organ. The voting was done by ballot, each member having a ballot with the re-quest that the vote be recorded and sent to the church secretary.

Dr. McGarvey published his views several days ago, giving Scriptural reasons for re-fusing to worship with instrumental music.

Boston, Nov. 23 .- There has been considerable speculation among the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston as to the number of men who would visit Boston next year with the Honourable Artillery & Company of London. This matter is settled by the receipt yesterday by Col. S. M. Hedges of a latter from Major W. N. Hillman, secretary of the London company, in which the writer says the London organization is planning to bring over 150 men. This number is far in excess of what the members had even hoped for and is an indication of the interest shown by the London company in the coming visit. Major Hillman says that the prospect of the trip to the United States is evoking the keenest interest among the members ments to Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Washington, Nov. 23.-Speaker Henderon, Chairman Cannon of the Appropriation Committee, who "if he lives and nothing happens" will be Speaker in the Fiftyeighth Congress; Senator Spooner and one or two other leaders of the Senate and House have arrived in Washington and will be ! among those with whom President Roosevelt will confer at the White House tomorrow, in accordance with invitations ent out a day or two ago. The President desires to talk with these men, not so much with regard to the recommendations to be included in his annua message, for that document is practically completed now, as about the legislative programme for the three months' session. It is generally agreed that no new measure of importance will be brought forward. except a bill proposing amendments to the Sherman Anti-trust law, designed to give the Executive more authority to check all violations of law and to meet the general views of President Roosevelt on this subject, which he has exploited in his public speeches and in his last year's message to Congress. Notwithstanding the fact that many of the Republican Congress leaders think the o-called trust question is one that it would e well to let alone, for the present at least, there is no reason to suppose that the President will refrain from again bringing it to the attention of Congress. Whether the bill prepared by the Department of Justice. and which Senator Cullom and other Conressmen are ready to introduce, will be pressed for action at this session is one of the matters that may be decided at to-norrow's conference.

It seems to be already determined that here will be no attempt at tariff legisla-ion, and even Representative Babcock. the most earnest Republican advocate of tariff revision, announces that he will not make a move in this direction at this session. He favors a meeting of the Fifty-eighth Congress in the spring to take up the question of tariff revision, but his Republican collegages are almost unani-

Mr. Cannon has been besieged by callers to-day, but has persistently refused to talk about politics or probable legislation. He thinks, however, that there will be plenty of work between now and March 4, in disposing of the annual appropration bills and ordinary matters of legislation already upon the calendars of the two houses, to keep Congress busy without taking up new questions. Mr. Cannon modestly admits that he is as good as elected Speaker, and says that he will go into the Speaker, and says that he will go into the caucus next December without pledges to advance any particular legislation or to distribute the committee patronage except in a way that will best serve the interest of the public.

THE PRESIDENT IN WASHINGTON. He Attends Church in the Afternoon and

There is no blot on our national greatness, but we present a sorry spectacle because of the moral degradation of our political life. What State is not under the sway of a boss, and a boss actuated by base motives, and leading us in ways which make the conscience shudder. A recent writer in a leading magazine says that Philadelphia is the worst-governed city in the world.

Look at the plucky little State of Delaware, stoutly resisting the fetters which one of the most unscrupulous bosses is trying to bind her with, and his agency is the open buying of votes. "I don't think there is anything in suicide theory," he said yesterday, there was no reason why she should commit suicide. When she left here she went to Paris with the object of cultivating her voice. She was absorbed in her singing lessons and was desirous of becoming a great singer. The theory that Rydzerski, the Rydzerski, and the Rydzerski, the Rydzerski, and the Rydzerski, the Rydzerski, and the Rydzerski. the Russian, sent a message to her that he was ill and that she went to his room it he was ill and that she went to his room in response to the message seems plausible. She was a good-ratured, kind-hearted woman and it would have been just like her to respond to a message of that kind."
